IRON TRADE REVIEW.

ONLY SMALL ORDERS ARE RECEIVED

OFFICE OF PITTSBURG DISPATCH. } The quietness of the past 60 days has culminated in a drop on mill and Bessemer irons. The latter are off $1 per ton the past week, and the former not less than 50c per ton. The total decline on mill irons from the highest point reached in the latter part of November has been $1 per ton, and on Bessemer iron from $2 to $3 per ton. There are rumored shadings on Bessemer irons this week at $21 50 per ton, and on mill irons at $17 50. Transactions are still very light, and makers of standard brands are unwilling to make concessions, believing that the present depression is due to speculative influences, and that it will not permanently affect the regular trade. The cost of materials which go to the making at their lowest. Then the market rate was $14 per ton, so that now at $17 50 per ton there is no more profit to the furnacemen than when mar-kets were down to hard pan. The present de-pression is, no doubt, largely due to speculation.

Speculators who bought on the boom have, of late, been showing stock onto the markets, and it is by them that the concessions are being made, and not by makers of standard brands of iron. It is generally thought that the unloading process will soon come to an end. The boom of last fall sent things kiting a little too fast, and the movement meant meant lawying come rander succellative. meet upward having come under speculative influences, was too rapid for healthy trade ience, the present lull and reaction, which i no doubt temporary. THE EXPOSITION OF 1892

Relied Upon to Greatly Strengthen the Gen eral Iron Manufacturers.

ISPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCEL! PHILADELPHIA, February 28. - The iron manufacturers are relying to some extent upon the construction of buildings for the Exposition of 1892 to strengthen the iron market. Wherever the Exposition is located it will consume many tons of structural iron which will keep some they reason that the demand from that city will clean up stocks closely in the South and at Pittsburg, leaving the local demand in the East to be supplied by Eastern manufactur-ers. Unmistratoble Duliness at Cincinnati.

ISPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.1 CINCINNATI, February 28.-Rogers, Brown &Co. say: Unmistakable duliness has ruled the week past. Consumers believe that the tendency of the market is in their favor and place no orders except for small lots to supply mmediate needs, Furnaces, on the other hand, feel firm and independent, having all they can do to take care of contracts on their books and not feeling much the need of new business. Dealers recognize that nothing is gained by attempting to push sales and the situation is therefore a stand-off. It is apparent that there must be liberal buying before long, as stocks are running low with many large foundries and mids.

PRPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. CHICAGO, February 28.—Rogers, Brown & Co. say: Carload business is still the order. The demand is mostly for softeners, and that in small lots. Further cases of resales of iron by consumers are reported. Beyond this no iron consumers are reported. Beyond this no iron is reported as being offered, except direct from the furnaces. The talk of building new furnaces or starting old ones here and there, renders buyers timid. It is not believed that the actual output of iron is increasing, nor is it thought that actual consumption is diminishing. There is not much forcing of sales, but a disposition on all sides to wait a little and let the situation adjust itself.

They Continue to Hammer Local Securities With Marked Effect.

When anything is down everybody wants to give it a kick. Sometimes there are tumbles without reason. This seems to be the case with local securities. Of course there are alleged reasons, but none of them affect conditions. All the properties are on as solid a foundation as ever, and are either earning dividends or are in a fair way to do so. The weakness displayed for two or three days must, therefore, be credited to the exigencies of speculation—a natural desire on the part of buyers to get stuff as cheaply as possible. Viewed in this light holders have no cause for alarm. The bears will wear themselves out before long. The best stayer will be the winner.

Continued depression in the actual list was the feature of the market yesterday. Booms were all the wrong way. Orders called for lower prices, and some of the timorous holders yielded to the pressure. All the sales were at fractional concessions. Street railways were the weakest spots. Investors think it impossible for all of them to earn dividends. Pleasant Valley opened at 24%. The last sale was 24%, closing at 24% bid. Central Traction was weak from the start. Quiet Day in Oil for the Close of the Month. The oil market was weak and inactive yesterday for the last day of the month, when there is usually more or less squeezing. There was none yesterday. The principal bearish influences were field developments, and friction between producers and grangers. The commodity hugged the dollar mark all day, but did Nearly all the trading was in the way of shifting deals from February to April. Cash was offered at about % below regular, and there was some switching on this basis. The change was effected without trouble, and the market gently swung into the April groove. Proceed-ings were lively at times, but there was no ex-citement, and both sides appeared to be satisied with the situation.

What the Persecuted Preducers Are Doing in the Several Fields.

in the Several Fields. Some farmers smile when they read of the very backy tied up, they at least furnished the ords themselves. Perhaps the flurry may have the final result of simplifying agreements so that common people may know what they mean. Any one who reads the average lease offered by the persistent lessees, who throw the farmer down and sit on him until he igns in order to the persistent lessees, who throw the farmer down and sit on him until he igns in order to escape something more terrible than the wrath to come, will agree that if the average farmer tied any one up he didn't know it. It is true there is a story of a Stowe township husbandman who got ahead of an oil-producing company some $20,000, but it isn't certain yet that he has done it, as some think he will yet be made disgorge. To the ordinary man up a tree the leases signed by most Grangers in this and surrounding counties appear to leave the farmer almost nothing, and if the producers put their feet in it, they should sue the legal gentlemen who furnished the forms. A good many years ago General James S, Negley tied many Beaver county farmers hand and foot. He has forfeited the leases many years, but some of the farmers are still so distressed by night visions that they can scarce get any rest.

Nearby there doesn't appear to have been much change in the situation. The well on the George Ferree farm. Coraopolis, went through the 100-foot without any show of oil of consequence, but the drill went on, and yesterday it was said that there were indications of oil in the next sand, though it is gas they are now delving after. As there was no news from the Anderson farm well, in Robinson township, it is supposed that the find wasn't large.

until the close, the last loan being effected at 8 per cent.

As a means for depressing quotations, however, this was comparatively a failure, and only in a few stocks which are subject to influence peculiar to themselves was any progress made in the downward direction. The money question is again, however, a prominent one and the eyes of the street are turned to Washington at present for some indication of a purpose to relieve the stringency, which, although not pressing at present, keeps the market within narrow limits. Country Produce-Jobbing Prices. There is a more active demand for fancy apples and prices are a shade higher. Com stock drags. The whole week's trade shows quietness in general produce lines. The adverse element has been the mild weather.
